1. BACKGROUND

National culture is culture that arises as an effort of the whole Indonesian people. The old and original culture, which is found as culture peaks in areas throughout Indonesian, is counted as the nation’s culture. East Nusa Tenggara is one of the provinces of Indonesia which has various ethnicities and customs. One of the cultures that become the most sacred customs in an area is marriage. In social associations, humans since they were born into the world already have a tendency to live together with other humans. In a small form, living together begins in a family formed by a man and women who have fulfilled the requirements of religious and customary law. Marriage is a bond that gives birth to the family as an element in social life. Traditional ceremony are closely related to religious rituals or also called rites. Rites are religious human tools to make changes. The community is also said to be symbolic of religion, or the ritual is "Religion and Action" (Ghazali, 2011).

The traditional dance that is aimed at by the artists is the perfections or satisfaction of appurtenance that follows the image of taste and from or technique that is in accordance with existing cultural even for long time. The great traditional dance grows and develops within a group of people who adhere to generation. As in Sikka regency, three are many traditional dance that are passed down from generation, one of which is the Ro’a mu’u dance. Art is part of culture that is inseparable from other cultural system that exists in society.

Ro’a mu’u is a dance often encountered in marriage rituals as a symbol of the agreement of the bride and groom. In this process the women will plant a banana tree in front of the house and hang the traditional Sikka sarong. In general, the cultural in Sikka Regency is one of the Ro’a mu’u performing at traditional wedding ceremony. In this ritual, the community consider that the banana tree has natural wisdom, although it is piece many times, it still grows and must have fruit before it dies.

Here the local people believe that this wisdom can penetrate the bride and groom so that they can give meaning to the surrounding environment and give offspring. The Ro’a mu’u ceremony has meaningful values because the Ro’a mu’u has its own meaning. The development of among the younger generation at this time is not always dependent on the lack of experience and understanding, for example, it often causes the younger generation to only, as a reaction suggestion and never imagine dance as an expression. Starting from the above. The writer as one of the younger generations, are compelled to research as an to process in Sikka regency, namely the traditional Ro’a mu’u dance. Based on the background above the writer focuses this study on to the process and meaning of Ro’a mu’u ceremony in Pogon Village. Based on the background and focus researchers above, the writer formulate the problems of this study as follow: How is the process of Ro’a mu’u ceremony in Pogon village? And What are the meaning of Ro’a mu’u ceremony in Pogon village? Based on the background above. This research aims to To describe the process of the Ro’a mu’u ceremony in Pogon village and To analysis meaning of the Ro’a mu’u ceremony in Pogon village.
2. REVIEW LITERATURE

2.1. Traditional Ceremony

The ceremony is a traditional ceremony according to religious teaching values other legal norms that are written in a society.

According to Funk and Wagnalls (2013) the term tradition is interpreted as knowledge, doctrine, habits, etc. Which are understood as knowledge that has been passed down from generation to generation, including the method of conveying doctrine. So tradition is a habit that was carried out by the community in the past until now. Muhaimin (2017) says that tradition is sometimes equated with the words adat in the view of society that it is understood as the same structure. Where in the tradition, people follow customary rules.

There is also the notion of tradition according to R. Redfield (2017) who says that tradition is divided into two, namely the great tradition (great tradition) is a tradition of its own, and likes to think and by itself includes a relatively small number of people while the little tradition (tradition small) is a tradition that comes from the majority of people who have never thought deeply about the traditions they have. So they never know what the habits of people used to be, because they don’t care about their culture. According to Cannadine (2010) Understanding Tradition is a new institution in Dress with an old-fashioned allure that defies the times but becomes a creation Spectacular, o tradition is a habit of people in the past that is guarded and preserved but influenced by outside culture due to modernization.

The definition of tradition in the narrow sense is special social inheritances that meet the requirements, namely those that survive in the present, that are still strongly tied to today’s life. So tradition is an activity or activity carried out by the local community from the past to the present that is guarded and preserved.

Understanding tradition According to Cannadinne (2010) seen from the aspect of material objects are material objects that show and remind us of their special connection with past lives. Where people used to believe in the existence of objects that could protect them from disaster.

2.2 Wedding Ceremony

Marriage is part of the stages that humans go through. Marriage is a basis for someone to start a new life, namely forming a family. Marriage According to Law Number 16 of 2019 is a physical and spiritual bond between a man and a woman as husband and wife with the aim of forming a happy and eternal family based on Belief in One Almighty God. When someone has decided to undergo NDID, an important decision in marriage means that he has determined his life.

Marriage is a sacred bond that is carried out between two individuals or people in the world. The definition of marriage according to customary law is that it is a commitment to live together between an adult man and woman with the aim of forming a family that requires witnesses and approval or recognition from each family as well as customary parties. In customary law it is explained that marriage is behavior that is not only worldly in nature, but also includes mystical or religious matters. The meaning of a marriage for customary law is very important because marriage does not only involve both parties but both sides of the family as well. Apart from that, the meaning of marriage according to customary law is also important for ancestors who have passed away (Wulansari, 2012). An important stage in human life is marriage, this is because it can change everyone’s legal status (Suastika, 2016). A marriage aims to build a family as well

Continuing offspring is in accordance with what is mandated in Article 28B paragraph (1) of the 1945 Constitution of the Republic of Indonesia which reads “Every person has the right to form a family and continue offspring through a legal marriage”. A family is the smallest form formed by at least one man and a woman. Without a human marriage, of course, it will not develop, this is because a marriage will later cause an offspring which then this descendant will give rise to a family (Firmansyah, 2017) Apart from that, forming a happy and eternal family. Belief in the One and Only God is also the goal of an ENDI. In this case, it can be interpreted that marriage lasts a lifetime. In maximizing his potential. A family can be said to be happy when two basic needs are met, namely physical and spiritual. (Salim, 2016)

In general, Indonesian people in carrying out a marriage are strongly influenced by customary law. This cannot be separated from the diversity of ethnic groups owned by Indonesian people, this is what has resulted in the emergence of various kinds of customary law in Indonesia. The law also has a very important role because it functions to regulate all human relations with others in everyday life, including regulating marriage, this is in accordance with the provisions of Article 18B paragraph (2) of the 1945 Constitution of the Republic of Indonesia which reads “The state recognizes and respects the unity of

2.3. Ro’a Mu’u

Ro’a mu’u is a ceremony carried out at wedding in the Sikka Krowe ethnic tradition as a symbol of the bridgroom’s and bride’s families. The bananas were planted by the bride’s family. The bananas were planted in front of the house and the bananas were hung with traditional Sikka Sarung namely Lipa Labu and Utan Labu and again provided with 1 pig, 1 sack of rice 10 liter of moke, and the grooms and money.

If the two families of the bride and groom cannot afford it, it can be simplified, namely enough bananas and horses according to ability.

The terms and conditions in the Ro’a Mu’u ceremony are the Ro’a mu’u dancers from the groom’s side or representatives and must be smart dancers dressed in traditional dress. And bring a machete, make sure the machete is shrap and the Ro’a mu’u ceremony is accompanied by a traditional musical instrument, namely the Gong waning, the beat or the beat, namely the Glecak. Because of hitting or tapping of the gong waning there are several kinds of sounds. The people who participate in the Ro’a Mu’u ceremony are the families of the bride and groom. The Ro’a Mu’u dance is a symbol of life for two people who will unite and live as a family.

In dancing, the dancers observe which parts must be cut sequentially without distributing other parts. The dance must cut starting from the leaves in sequence, then to the branches, to the the branches up to the banana stems and that’s where the Ro’a Mu’u ceremony completed.

2.4. Previous Study

Based on first previous study by Erni (2022), this thesis discusses the mappasindua tradition in the marriage process in Letta Village in terms of Islamic law. The purpose of this research is to find out the mappasindua procession, to explore the meaning contained in the mappasindua tradition and the views of Islamic law on the mappasindua tradition at weddings in Letta Village, Lembang District, Pinrang Regency. This type of research is qualitative (field research) with a normative sociological approach. The data sources consist of two, namely primary data and secondary data. With data collection techniques through observation, interviews and documentation. As for the data analysis techniques, namely data reduction, data presentation and drawing conclusions. The results of the study show that, firstly, this mapasindua tradition is carried out at night where the bride and groom are brought into the room that has previously prepared food to be given to the bride and groom. The food consists of sokko, free-range chicken, free-range chicken eggs and many other side dishes. Second, the meaning contained in the mappasindua tradition is that it is believed in society that after carrying out this tradition, the character of a husband and wife such as being selfish, tough/rough can change to become softer and not defend each other's ego after carrying out the mappasindua tradition. Third, the recognition of Islamic law regarding the mappasindua tradition, namely the mappasindua tradition is seen as a tradition that has mubah legal status. Because of its permissible status, the application of the mappasindua tradition in Letta Village can be justified.

Based on previous study by Abdykadyrova (2022) entitle Main Values of Wedding Traditions and Representation of Wedding Concept by Language Means. This work is devoted to the linguo-cognitive and linguocultural study of the concept of "wedding". The concept as a universal category plays a very important role in the culture of every nation; in all languages they reflect not only universal concepts, but also completely different meanings and properties of the objective world, which explains their different manifestations in language. The linguistic picture of the world influences people and forms their linguistic consciousness, and with them their cultural and national identity. The influence of cultural and human factors on the formation and functioning of various linguistic units (lexemes, free and nonfree phrases or idioms, and even texts) are culturally marked in the content, which is embodied in national connotations. This study illustrates a comparative study of wedding traditions reflected in English, Russian and Kyrgyz cultural linguistics. Marriage, being a universal human "universal" - the only possible form of social life, although extremely variable, has a national specificity. Marriage is a mirror that reflects the social, legal, demographic and cultural aspects of the life of peoples. It shows the complex palette of the social relations system. The relevance of this study is due to a number of factors: the high importance of the linguocultural concept "wedding" for the Russian, English and Kyrgyz cultures; the lack of existing research approaches to the description of the highlighted concept; the need for a detailed and comprehensive study of this concept, which is a fragment of a separate concept sphere. The aim of the research is a linguo-cognitive and linguocultural analysis of the universal concept "wedding", which is actualized in correlated fragments of Russian, English and Kyrgyz cultures.

4.2 Discussion

In discussing the results of the research, the author will combine the results of the research with the theory that aims to check the suitability between the research results and the existing theory.
4.2.1 The Process Of Ro’aMu’u Ceremony In Pogon Village

Based on Agustinus Daguar Dareas a traditional leader, Ro’a Mu’u is a marriage ritual as a symbol of the second opportunity for the bride and groom. Ro’a mu’u is performed at the bride’s house, after the bride and groom carry out a church wedding. Ro’a mu’u is carried out home from the church in accordance with the agreement of both parties, namely the male side (me pu) and the female side (ina ama).

In this process, the woman will plant a banana tree in front of the house and replace the traditional Sikka sarong, in general, ro’a mu’u in Sikka district is one of the traditional ceremonies marriage that is prioritized in traditional wedding ceremonies, (AgustinusDaguar Dare). The process for implementing Ro’a mu’u are the first implementation of the application. Both sides of the family, namely the male family (me pu) and the female family (inaama) agreed to carry out the application. Proposal, namely the male family (me pu) informs the female family (inaama) that their son will be engaged to a girl. They set the day and date to come engaged. The second implementation of the fiancé. The male family (me pu) comes with a ring and puts the ring on the girl's finger. The third, inter-buying implementation. The two families agreed to carry out the marriage in a noble manner while at the same time carrying out the ro’amu’u ceremony. The male family (me pu) brings the dowry that was agreed upon at the time of application. The dowry brought from the male family in Sikka custom is elephant ivory (bala), horse (rare), money (hoangsong), chicken (manu), banana (mu’u), pineapple (pedan), jackfruit (nakat), corn (le’le) which is still intact, betel nut (wuata’a), the woman's family receives the dowry and as an obligation the woman's family pays back to the man's family, namely men's sarongs and clothes (lipa pumpkin), women's sarongs and clothes (utan pumpkin), rice (pare), pork (wawi), a special Maumere drink (mokes). The fourth, Implementation of banana planting rituals (mu’u). Banana plants (mu’u) as a whole are planted by the woman at the bride's house. Banana planting time (mu’u) in the morning before the wedding ceremony at the church. The fifth, Church wedding. The bride and groom carry out a legal marriage by receiving the sacrament of marriage in the church. The six, Implementation. Ro’a mu’u is performed after a church wedding. The ro’a mu’u event is a traditional ceremony by cutting a banana tree planted in front of the bride’s house. Kassing(1993) recommended that the requirements are traditional sikka sarong clothes & men's clothes (lipa pumpkin), sarongs & women's clothes (utan pumpkin), scarves & head ties (lensembar). The requirements for men are traditional sikka clothing, sarongs and long-sleeved men's clothing (lipa pumpkin), sarongs and women's clothing (utan pumpkin), scarves and head ties (lensembar).

Bastoni (1992) state that the musical instrument used is the gong waning. Gong waning is a traditional musical instrument in Sikka district in the form of drums, bamboo and gongs. The musical instrument used is the gong waning glebak.

4.2.2 The Meaning Of The Ro'aMu'u Ceremony In Pogon Village

Marriage is one of the important moments in life man. Humans experience changes in the levels of individual life during his life which is called the life cycle, namely childhood, adolescence, marriage, old age, and death. (Koentjaraningrat, 1977). The meaning of ro'am'u is that the bride and groom feel that marriage is a very sacred value with the aim of continuing offspring so that their marriage is symbolized by meaning and social values. The importance of ro'a mu'u for the bride and groom is to have self-respect. Ro'am'u for Pogon village is that bananas that have been cut mean that they are legally valid according to custom, have become husband and wife, have lived in the same house and have given birth to offspring. Bananas that have been cut many times but still grow and develop. It's the same with humans.

Pogon village community must maintain the customs and culture of ro'a mu'u for the younger generation because this ceremony is a sacred wedding ceremony with the aim of continuing the lineage so that the younger generation must learn and carry out this ceremony for generations. For the younger generation, they have to learn the customs and culture of ro'a mu'u. Do not let them forget these customary rules because they are contained in the customary law of the church.

The effort of the people of Pogon Village in maintaining the ro'a mu'u ceremony is to continue the ro'a mu'u ceremony from generation to generation. The effort of the Pogon Village community in maintaining the ro'a mu'u ceremony is that they have to look after young people regarding traditional marriages so that they can follow the procedures for ro'a mu'u ceremonies such as proposals, fiancés, inter-belis and finally marriages that are passed down from generation to generation.

The banana cutting ceremony is carried out 1 time carefully by dancers from the groom accompanied by glebak dance and gong waning music. The glebak dance is a pick-up dance which is a joy in a family. The seven, closing. The bride and groom entered the house and were greeted with the traditional greeting of Sikka/HulerWair Regency. Meanwhile, the meaning of ro'a mu'u is that the bride and groom feel that marriage is a very sacred value with the aim of continuing offspring so that their marriage is symbolized by meaning and social values.

5.2 Suggestion

1. For Pogon village community must preserve the customs and culture of ro'amu'u for the younger generation because this ceremony is a sacred wedding ceremony with the aim of continuing the lineage so that the younger generation must learn and carry out this ceremony for generations.

2. For the younger generation, they have to learn the customs and culture of ro'amu'u. Do not let them forget these customary rules because they are contained in the customary law of the church.
